

It is truly my hope that you are not going to allow lobbyists for these large networks to inhibit my ability to gain valuable information in the way that I see fit. I chose to purchase XM radio and do use the weather information on a regular basis. If I choose not to listen to regular radio, that is my right, and I should not be penalized for it. Everybody that gets satellite TV has already been penalized for that service by not being allowed the free choice of getting network television stations. I personally live in an area that is very remote and does not get good radio or tv reception. The television networks don't see that I am remote enough to get the waiver, and therefore I just don't get them. Please don't let something like this happen to the radio as well.

Sincerely,
Brian Beckett
